Western sailors place eighth

Western's eight-man sailing team from the Viking Yacht Club took eighth place last month in competition against the nation's best collegiate sailors in the John F. Kennedy Memorial Regatta held at Annapolis.

Skipper Pete Jepson of Bellevue piloted his crew through five weekend races, defeating every boat at least once with the exception of the victorious defending champion crew from Tulane University. The Vikings finished ahead of Notre Dame and The Citadel.

Other schools participating in the invitational regatta were University of Southern California, Stanford, Yale, Navy, Rhode Island and New York Maritime College.

This was the first time Western had participated in the Kennedy Regatta held on Chesapeake Bay and the crew was not disappointed in its showing. As team member Claude Kennedy of Olympia observed:

"We found out that we were really competitive against the best college teams in the nation. A couple of breaks and we could have finished as high as third."

Other members of the Vik crew were Jeff Foltz, navigator, Long Beach, Calif.; Mike Collins, Seattle; David Lewis, Bellevue; Rick Rottman, Seattle; Paul Plesha, Lynnwood; and Bob Franks, Kent.

All teams sailed in 44-foot Annapolis yawls, which were built for the Navy by Uniflite, Inc., of Bellingham.

Ex-Senior Hall women gather

Former residents of Senior Hall from the years 1956-1962 and their housemother, Mrs. Ethel Anderson, met for a luncheon in Seattle in February.

Among those in attendance were Nina Ayers Troutner ('61), Linda Arrington Donnelly ('59), Louella Vaungh ('60), Sandra Fell Barrie ('62), Sylvia Shaeffer Mathews ('62), June Ashe Edwards ('62), Janet Horace Young ('62), Kathy Bowers Park ('61), Linda Bresee ('60), Marie Garrison Weisse ('61), Doniece Gilman Wilson ('61), Marilyn Jensen Lane ('61), Sue Nyhus Munro ('61), Leslie Pinckney Keller ('61), and Liz Shafer Martindale ('61).

Smith headlines athletic dinner

Jim Smith, former wrestling coach at Western who now tutors grapplers at the University of Washington, will be the main speaker at the WWSC Athletic Awards Dinner, sponsored by the Department of Athletics.

The event will be held at 8 p.m. June 2 at the Viking Commons on the Western campus. Tickets are $3.50.

Persons interested in attending the banquet should contact Paul Madison, Men's Physical Education Department, WWSC, by May 21.

Freeman named Fairhaven dean

Dr. Kenneth D. Freeman has been named dean of Fairhaven College by the WWSC board of trustees. The appointment will be effective August 1.

Dr. Freeman, 37, has been dean of Bensalem Experimental College, a cluster college at Fordham University, for the past two years. His teaching areas include logic, philosophy of religion, Greek philosophy, philosophy of higher education, the philosophy of A. N. Whitehead and existentialism.

Prior to his work at Fordham, Dr. Freeman was a member of the faculty at Cornell University for eight years, serving as director of the humanities program and chairman of the philosophy department.

Harvey Gelder has been acting dean of Western's first cluster college since the death of Dean Charles Harwood last summer.

Faculty layoffs

The termination of employment of 26 faculty members as a result of the current economic crisis in the state was approved by Western's board of trustees at their April meeting.

Deans Frederick Sargent II and Fred Knapman explained that the department chairmen made the final decision as to those faculty members which were to be released. Most persons terminated were among those most recently hired.

EARTH WEEK CLEANUP — Western students are shown here cleaning up along Whatcom Creek in Bellingham as part of their participation in Earth Week during April. Location is west of Cornwall Avenue. Students see possibility of eventual park along the creek with bike and walking trails.
Technology students will enter urban vehicle design competition

Western technology students are designing an entry for the 1972 “Urban Vehicle Design Competition” sponsored by Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The competition is an outgrowth of last year’s “Clean Air Race” from Cambridge, Mass., to Pasadena, Calif., in which more than 50 colleges participated.

This year, instead of emphasizing just speed and anti-pollution devices, the competition will be based on the design of an entire car, including acceleration and maximum turning circle plus such human factors concerning safety, comfort and luggage space.

Dr. M. R. Seal of the department of technology is the adviser to Western students involved in the project. He says WWSC students have the necessary background to produce as good a car as any entered in previous competitions.

“We intend to meet 1975 Federal safety regulations and if possible the 1980 regulations,” Dr. Seal explained.

The students hope to use a modified Wankel rotary engine—which Mazda now uses in its cars—but will go with a standard Toyota internal combustion engine if necessary, Seal added.

Toyota has already donated a complete car to the technology department for its use and Mazda has provided information and models of its rotary engine. There is a chance Mazda will supply a complete motor.

Seal said that although many donations have been received, the Urban Car Project still needs about $10,000. Some of the money will be used to transport the completed car to Cambridge where the competition will be held and some to send representatives and preliminary designs to a symposium to be held in August.

Although the competition will be held in August of 1972, a great deal of preliminary planning has brought forth the following schedule:

- April-May, solicit support; June 1, prepare several preliminary designs; July 1, refine the best proposal; August 1, presentation of symposium paper; September 1, redesign in light of complete rules; December 1 to June 1, 1972, construction of body chassis unit and refine power plant; summer session 1972, trials and modifications; August 1972, competition.

Students involved in the project thus far are graduate student Pete Sorenson, Robert Merriam, Alex McDonald, Noel Dunnavan and David Weir. Faculty members assisting in addition to Seal, who is in charge of power mechanics and metals, are Claude Hill, plastics and wood, and Marvin Southcott, a design specialist.

Teams must be composed of full-time students from accredited institutions. Industry may supply funding and parts readily available on the open market, but may not design vehicle components or supply systems not commercially available to the teams.
