Eastern rout spices homecoming

Western's Class of '61 started a successful Homecoming celebration off with a social hour at the Leopold Inn the evening of October 23 where some 50 persons gathered to brace themselves against the elements and put the Vikings' crucial football battle with Eastern Washington in proper perspective.

The class' game plan jelled beautifully as the Viks demolished the Savages in a 50-7 rout that added another stitch to Western's efforts to sew up the Evergreen Conference title. Everything the Vikings attempted turned into yardage as they rolled up 476 yards in offense, sparked by the running of fullback Tom Wigg, who traveled 205 yards in 25 carries and scored three touchdowns.

Following the satisfying exhibition of football, some 125 alumni repaired to the Leopold Inn for dinner and dancing to the Ron Peterson Trio.

The Rev. Herman G. Tegenfeldt, a 1934 graduate of Western, has been named alumnus of the year at Bethel College and Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., during recent homecoming festivities there. A native of Bellingham, Mr. Tegenfeldt is now on the faculty of Bethel Seminary. For 25 years he was a missionary in Burma under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. He is currently on sabbatical for study toward a doctorate in missiology at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif.

Mrs. Tegenfeldt is also a graduate of Western. The couple has six children, four of whom are alumni of Bethel.

Bellingham woman wins scholarship

Mrs. Teresa L. Davis of Bellingham has been awarded the $200 May Bettman Memorial Scholarship at Western. The scholarship was contributed by faculty, alumni and other friends of the college in memory of an instructor of commercial studies from 1918 to 1955 who died in 1968.

Mrs. Davis, a senior majoring in psychology, has a cumulative grade-point average of 3.81. She plans to teach at the community college level.

Mrs. Davis is the wife of Stephen H. Davis and has a daughter, aged 2.

Fairhaven college offers courses on law

Fairhaven College is offering two courses this year which examine the law as an evolving body of cultural mores, rather than a structure of courts and legal procedure. The instructor for the two courses on the law and man is Rand Jack, an attorney who joined the Fairhaven faculty this year.

The first course offered by Jack will be "The Concept of Justice," based on literature and the writings of several philosophers. It will examine the idea of justice in the American legal system and how various notions of justice can be applied to contemporary problems.

The other course is "Freedom of Expression and the First Amendment." It will look at Supreme Court cases dealing with this question, and will also probe several cases concerning freedom of expression in the public arena and the academic community.

In a recent interview, Jack stated he hopes to acquaint students with the law as something that can be a useful tool in their own lives, rather than something that one encounters only periodically. He says the student should not see the law as "a gloomy presence in the sky."

In line with the two courses, Jack has issued a plea for any law reference works which may be in the possession of alumni and are not being used. Fairhaven has particular need for the Revised Code of Washington; United States Supreme Court Reports (or its digest); Washington State Supreme Court Report (or its digest); or any other basic law volumes.

Persons willing to donate such volumes to the college, or loan them for a period of time, should contact Jack at Fairhaven College, or get in touch with the Alumni Office at Western.

Editor, RESUME:

Just a short note to let you know I've moved from Anchorage to Kivalina. Kivalina is an Eskimo village of approximately 170 people. It is located on the Chukchi Sea half way between Kotzebue and Point Hope, Alaska. I am principal-teacher with my wife and another couple working with me. We are teaching all twelve grades.

We only get mail twice a week and have to order our basic food supplies each spring for the year. The hunting, trapping and fishing are very good and we are also learning a lot about the Eskimo way of life. The Eskimos are good people and fun to work with. There are 62 students in the school at present.

Our only communication with the "outside world" is by radio. And transportation is by airplane. The nearest hospital is in Kotzebue, 85 miles south. In the village there is a health-aid who communicates daily with the hospital via radio to get instructions for the sick people in the village.

The temperature in the winter runs in the -10 to -30 area with summer temperatures in the 80's. Strong winds prevail in the month of January creating a chill factor as high as -100.

In the winter it is daylight approximately four hours a day and in the summer it never gets dark.

You might be interested to know that there are only three or four people in the village who, though they understand English, are unable to speak it to any great degree. The remainder of the inhabitants are primarily English speaking. To preserve their native language, city council meetings and parts of church services are conducted in Eskimo.

There is a town constable and a curfew for the school age children. Movies are ordered by the city council and other clubs in the village for weekly local entertainment.

Our school's student council has recently adopted the project of raising money to purchase video tape equipment. In this way our children will be able to benefit from shows such as Sesame Street, The Electric Company and Hot Dog, etc.

I enjoy reading Resume and look forward to receiving it each month.

Sincerely,

Mel Bowens

Enrollment

With a final head-count now completed, enrollment for fall quarter at Western has been set at 9,435 students. This figure represents full-fee-paying students, according to the registrar's office at the college.

The figure falls only 15 students short of the figure of 9,450—the level at which Western has been budgeted by the state legislature.

"Since we are this close, we assume that the state will not further reduce our budget for the year," President Charles J. Flora commented.

The total number of students enrolled, including part-time and extension students, is 9,864. This figure represents an increase of 264 students as compared with last year.

For the previous three years, total enrollment had increased at an average of 1,120 students per year.

Of the total figure 89 are enrolled at Huxley College, 66 at The College of Ethnic Studies, 512 at Fairhaven College and 9,152 at the College of Arts and Sciences. In addition, there are 44 students enrolled in extension classes under the Center for Continuing Studies.
