Western receives $1 million gift

A long-time Bellingham businessman, Gordon H. "Bus" Fraser, and his wife, Alice, have given the largest single gift to Western in the history of the school. The gift of approximately $1 million consists of the assets of Fraser Enterprises, Inc., a closely held corporation.

In making the gift, Fraser said he first considered the idea about five years ago at the suggestion of Bellingham attorney Burton Kingsbury, a former WWU trustee. Fraser said that he wanted to demonstrate to the Bellingham business community the importance of supporting Western.

"My wife and I have no children," Fraser said, "so the idea had a certain appeal to us." He added that current tax laws and proposed changes present a good climate for making the gift now, so final arrangements were made.

Fraser said his neighbor and friend, Hubertus Kohn, a WWU biology professor, was extremely helpful to him during the entire process, giving advice and arranging meetings with Western administrators.

The Fraser Fund will be used principally to support life and health science, programs for senior citizens, plant biology, equipment for research in these areas, lectureships and scholarships. Careful thought and attention was given by the Frasers in emphasizing these specific areas of study which have personal importance and significance to them and to society. The Frasers' interest in health and life sciences stems from the longevity of Alice Fraser's parents, both of whom lived into their 90s.

Fraser owned the Chevrolet dealership in Bellingham from 1957 to 1976. Mrs. Fraser is an alumna of Bellingham Normal School, one of Western's predecessor institutions. Mr. Fraser also attended the Normal before transferring to the University of Washington.
Western holds Veterans Day observance on campus Nov. 11

The first Veterans Day observance in the history of Western was held Tuesday, November 11. The event took place at the main entrance to the campus, corner of College Parkway and South College Drive, across from Buchanan Towers residence hall. Three 50-foot flagpoles installed at the site were dedicated during the 20-minute ceremony.

Speakers included Don Cole, vice president for business and financial affairs; Tim Douglas, former WWU dean of students who is now mayor of Bellingham; and the Rev. James Stender, Lutheran minister from Campus Christian Ministry.

"This is not a glorification of war. It is a celebration of people—the people who fought against an evil empire," said Stender. He spoke of the emotional scars of war and reminded the crowd of the pain of Vietnam veterans who returned to the mistrust of their fellow Americans.

"Today we mourn those who have died and hope for a time when there is no war," he said.

A Marine Color Guard from Marine Air Group 42, Detachment 6, NAS Whidbey, brought in the colors and assisted student veterans Gena Merritt, Rebecca Rounds and Randy Hansen of the WWU Veterans Outreach Center in raising the banners.

Some 125 veterans and citizens watched as the 8-foot by 12-foot United States, Washington state and WWU flags were cranked up the aluminum masts.
New York Alumni Gathering

Some 20 Western graduates from the New York and New England areas converged on the New York University Club in Manhattan on Oct. 29 to catch up on WWU. Western President G. Robert Ross and Vice President for University Advancement Jeanene DeLille greeted the Western contingent and caught up on Western's activities.

Letters

Dear Alumni Office:
The person in charge of the Oct. 29 New York City WWU Alumni gathering may want to mention that the Kodak Company has chosen to advertise on one quality of its film with a gigantic picture of Mr. Shukans over Times Square.

This is Ted's and my first year on the East Coast. We are approaching The Big Apple the way we approached the Cascades in the past — on foot. We were somewhat afoot when we broke into the clearing of Times Square to see the familiar Mr. Shukans towering above us! See you the 29th.

1987 distinguished alumni nominations due by Dec. 31

The Western Alumni Association is now accepting nominations for the 1987 Distinguished Alumni Award. Deadline for nominations to reach the Alumni Office is December 31, 1986. The Distinguished Alumni Award is presented annually at a banquet on the evening before commencement.

Last year, the WWU Alumni Association honored Dr. John Terrey, executive director of the Washington State Board for Community College Education. The 1985 award went to Thomas Nelson, a pioneer of the half-way house concept. In 1984, eastern Washington wheat farmer William Zagelow was honored with the award.

The award is made annually to an individual, who, in the opinion of the selection committee, has made substantial contributions to his or her field specifically or to society in general through humanitarian efforts and accomplishments. The award is based upon a lifetime of work, not just one accomplishment.

Nominations should include as much supporting material as possible, including letters, newspaper clippings, books, journals, etc. Persons who have been previously nomi­nated are automatically reviewed again, although additional information may be submitted to support such renominations.

The selection committee is com­posed of three persons from the Alumni Board and three persons from the University. Nominees are not notified by the committee of their nomination.

The selected individual is notified in the spring and at the Distinguished Alumni Banquet is pre­sented with a life membership in the Alumni Club and a plaque. In addition, the winner's name is included on the permanent plaque in the Alumni Office.

Nominations and supporting ma­terial must reach the Alumni Office, Old Main 475, Western Washington University, Bellingham, WA 98225, by December 31, 1986.

Alumni vacation brings over 100 to campus

This year's Alumni Vacation (July 27 to August 1) had something to offer just about anyone. Many participants visited Expo '86 in Vancouver, B.C. Others attended campus tours featuring the computer center, the Vehicle Research Institute, the Institute for Wildlife Toxicology and a backstage visit to Western's Summer Stock company.

Participants stayed in the Fairhaven residence hall complex on south campus. Over 100 people attended from throughout Washington, British Columbia, Oregon, Califor­nia, West Virginia and Virginia—all taking advantage of the week's warm and sunny weather. Alumni Vacation participant Ken Baker, from Athens, West Virginia, commented that the outside temperature (72 degrees) was the same temperature in his house in West Virginia—however during the terrible heat in the south this summer 72 degrees had cost him hundreds of dollars in air conditioning! Ken could be seen throughout the week smiling and enjoying the climate.

Mid-week Alumni Vacationers enjoyed our annual salmon barbecue at Lakewood, Western's student recreation area on Lake Whatcom. Before dinner, families utilized Lakewood's canoes and kayaks and sampled local wines. Following the meal many participants gathered on the dock to enjoy a Northwest sunset.

Plan now to attend next year's Alumni Vacation—June 25 to 28. Alumni Vacation in 1987 has a new time and length—a three day week­end. Take in everything that Western and Bellingham have to offer with your family or get together with a bunch of your old roomies for Alumni Vacation. Reservation infor­mation will be in the winter issue of Resume.

Meet the 1986-87 Alumni Board Scholarship Winners — As in past years, the WWU Alumni Association awarded three full tuition and fees scholarships to students entering or continuing their educations at Western. Although we have announced the names of these outstanding students in a previous issue, we thought readers might like a more personal profile.

Heather Parker, 36, is completing her bachelor’s degree program in nursing at Western. She is originally from Snohomish and has attended WWU since 1984. Parker works part-time in the pediatrics unit of Bel- lingham’s St. Joseph Hospital in addition to carrying a full academic load.

Upon being notified of her selection, Parker wrote: “I would like to thank the alumni of Western for making this scholarship possible. Without this assistance, I would not be able to complete my bachelor’s in nursing program here in Bellingham. Words of thanks seem inadequate to describe my sincere appreciation for the support and assistance you have given me.

Mien (Julia) Tai, 20, of Bellingham is majoring in accounting at Western. She has received the Alumni Board Scholarship for the second year in a row. Tai is originally from Taiwan and although English is her second language, she graduated from Bellingham’s Sehome High School with a 3.9 grade point average.

“I’m very grateful and honored to be a recipient of the WWU Alumni Scholarship for the past two years,” Tai said. “This financial assistance has enabled me to devote all of my time to my studies and to achieve my long-term goals. But perhaps more importantly, I have learned the true meaning of the words “caring matters,” as demonstrated by the Alumni Association in taking an interest in my future.”

Ambre Brockbank, 21, attended high school in Salt Lake City. At Western, she is majoring in nutritional biochemistry and this year is an undergraduate fellow in the chemistry department.

Brockbank also received the WWU Alumni Board Scholarship for the 1984-85 academic year. During her fellowship, she is studying the interrelationship of the virus and its associated satellite RNA. Her ultimate goal is to become a family health practitioner.

“Receiving the Alumni Board Scholarship meant a great deal to me, since it enabled me to have more time for my studies as well as tutoring other students,” Brockbank said recently. “In previous years, this time was spent working to support myself. I’m very appreciative of being selected for this award,” she added.

WWU Alumni Board Scholarship recipients are made possible solely through the donations of Western alumni and friends. The board has set a goal of raising $15,000 for the scholarship fund each year for the next five years to enable the Alumni Association to provide up to 10 such scholarships each year.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of demonstrated academic ability, breadth of activities, sense of individual purpose, direction and financial need.

With the continued help of Western alumni, we can expand this program in the future and encourage other students with the qualities and capabilities other exhibited by Ambre, Julia and Heather.

Legislative budget requests reflect Western’s commitment to quality

When the new year arrives, Western, along with all other public agencies, will present the State Legislature with its requests for the 1987 session. The actual request culminates two years of preparatory work, during which the University has carefully examined its needs.

Budget requests are in two parts: capital and operations. The capital request seeks two high-priority items. Western is seeking $4,269,000 to complete a new technology building and to properly equip it. In addition, planning, constructing and equipping a new chemistry/biology building will require $46,630,000.

Currently, biology and chemistry are housed in Haggard Hall, the original science building constructed in 1959. It no longer meets the programs’ needs and is not suited to renovation for science purposes. It will be used for other needs.

The operating budget affects the University’s day-to-day operations—staffing levels, maintenance, library acquisitions, and so on. Among the highlights of that budget request are:

- Enrollment increases of 150 students in each of the next two years
- Graduate fellowships in writing and mathematics
- Additional opportunity programs for minority students
- Increased funding for the Honors Program

- Faculty development program for improved teaching and increased research opportunities.
- Increased library acquisitions.
- Additional support for academic and administrative computing.
- Increased faculty for impacted academic areas.
- Increased funding for Pacific Rim programs.
- Funding for applied research associated with economic development.
- Increased funding for artistic and cultural events.
- Increased foreign student exchange program.

Two agencies external to Western have made recommendations to the Legislature as well. The Washington Roundtable, a group of prominent business leaders, has recommended a special $4 million appropriation, intended to move Western faculty staffing levels toward that of the other regional universities.

The Higher Education Coordinating Board recently recommended an 18.3 percent salary increase in order to bring faculty salaries to the level of comparable institutions.

Western President G. Robert Ross, in commenting on the two reports, said, “We are pleased to see that independent organizations external to the University agree with our assessment of the University’s needs.”

NEW BUILDING — Western’s new technology building rises between Armitzen Hall (right) and the older arts/technology building to the north. The 72,375-square-foot, three-story structure will provide teaching and research space for plastics, electronics engineering technology, industrial design, vehicle research, metals, woods and power mechanics. VICoE will remain in the present facility. The building is scheduled for completion in early summer, 1987. The upcoming legislative session will be asked to fund $4.2 million to provide equipment for the new structure and to begin remodeling the art building to meet the current needs of the art department.

How to order a transcript

Western alumni who would like a transcript of their grades sent to prospective employers, other colleges, or to themselves, should be aware that it cannot be ordered by phone. Since a signature is required, alumni might save time and effort by following these simple instructions:

Send your letter requesting a transcript to Office of the Registrar, OM 230, Western Washington University, Bellingham, WA 98225. List your full name (plus former name, if applicable), current address, student number (if you remember it), date of birth, and name and address of agency you want it sent to. Include a check, payable to WWU, for $3 for each official transcript, or $2 for an unofficial transcript. Do not send cash. Be sure to sign your request. □

Because of recent changes in the tax law, 1986 may be the last year non-itemizers will be able to deduct contributions to charitable, non-profit organizations such as The Western Foundation, Inc., or the Alumni Association Scholarship Fund.

As 1986 is quickly coming to an end, time is running out for non-itemizers. In addition, the standard deduction is scheduled to increase in 1987, which means you’ll have to have even more deductions than the year before in order to itemize. Many tax advisers are suggesting that individuals make a new gift or even double what they would normally give this year in order to compensate for the effects of the new tax law.

A generous gift to Western now will bring mutual benefit to you and to future students and scholarship recipients.

Contributions to any fund or division of WWU may be sent to: The Western Foundation, Inc., Old Main 445, Western Washington University, Bellingham, WA 98225. □

Resume / Fall 1986
Parents an important part of the Western community

Parents' first introduction to Western might well be a reason for our recent Preview Day. Both are programs planned by Western's admissions personnel to inform prospective students and their parents about Western.

During Summerstart sessions, parents talk about the philosophy and courses of the UW (University requirement) courses, receiving information about how students are being advised academically, so they'll know why students are choosing the classes they do. They get tips for parenting a college student and an introduction to different student support services. There are also special interest sessions, such as financial aid and career planning. Over 800 parents attended the first Summerstart session last August.

Parents of all new students—transfers and freshmen—attend the Parents Orientation session on the Sunday before fall classes begin. Questions about academic concerns and parenting a college student are answered.

This year, two opportunities for all Western parents to visit campus have been scheduled. In addition to the traditional Parents Open House held in November, parents and staff are now busy planning a Parents Weekend to take place in April. The next weekend will be a time for parents to share in the college life of students.

Finally, Sounding, Western's quarterly parents newsletter, keeps parents up-to-date about student services, academics, and concerns.

In memoriam

James D'A. Clark
Dr. James D. A. Clark died September 25 in Montecito, Calif., at age 85. He had been a member of the Chemistry Department at Western from 1963 until his retirement in 1983.

Clark was born in Beith, Scotland, in 1901; however, he spent his youth in Capetown, South Africa. He received a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Colorado in 1926, a Ph.D. in cellulose chemistry from Lawrence Livermore, Washington, in 1931.

During World War II he served as a lieutenant colonel in the Quartermaster Corps.

His varied career in wood products technology included positions in England and a post as technical director of the Scott Paper Company in this country. He also served as a private consultant to the pulp and paper industry.

From 1959 to 1963 he was a professor of pulp and paper science at Oregon State University.

Clark published numerous papers as the result of his research, received many patents, and was one of the development of carbon and was an international consultant to the pulp and paper industry. In 1979 he summarized his extensive knowledge and experience in a 710-page book, Pulp Technology and the Environment, and completed its revision in 1983.

Clark is survived by his wife, Agnes, of Montecito; two nephews, Dr. Justin Howse of London and Dr. Ronald Losse of Montana; and numerous great-nieces and nephews.

An all points bulletin is now in force for members of Western's 1937 graduating class. If you are a grad from that year and/or you know the addresses of others, the Alumni Office would like you to write with addresses. The point of all this is to put together the mailing list for the 50-Year Reunion of the Class of 37.

The Alumni Office computer does have some of your names and grad dates, but we're missing many more than we have on file. Let us know where you and your classmates are and you'll be sure to get on the mailing list for this spring's reunion.

Men's basketball — There's a new look to Western this season—one that Coach Brad Jackson hopes will translate itself into an NAIA District I playoff berth. The front line is taller and stronger; the backcourt is quicker. And despite the loss to graduation of three starters from a Viking squad which compiled an 11-15 record in Jackson's rookie season, an air of optimism pervades the program.

The two returning starters are 6-7 center Shane Nickel, who averaged 10.7 points and a team-leading 8.1 rebounds, and 6-0 point guard Tim Dickerson, who scored at a 9.3 clip. Also back are 6-3 forward Dale Harris, who averaged 10.2 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in a reserve role after becoming declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible, speedy 5-9 guard Marcus Buren, who averaged 8.6 points in five games before being declared academically ineligible; fast-paced 5-11 guard Tim Dickerson, who averaged 9.3 points; and guard Todd Smith, who has the potential to become Western's first authentic NAIA All-America since guard Mike Franzo was so honored 14 years ago.

Another talented newcomer is 6-3 freshman guard-forward Manny Kimmie, who Jackson says "has the potential to be one of the best guards I've ever coached."

For the supporting cast includes 6-0 guard Mike Elser, 6-4 forward Scott Evans, 6-3 forward Mark Smith and 6-2 guard Todd Smith.

Women's basketball — With it's best-ever campaign now a pleasant memory, the Western women must tackle the task at hand: a new season. With major changes in the roster, it may not be an easy one.

Four players, including three starters, one of them a second-team All-America, have graduated from the squad which reached the quarterfinals of the NAIA national tournament and compiled a 25-8 record. Obviously, no one should count out any team coached by Lynda Goodrich, whose 15-year record of 316-97 is among the nation's best.

The rest of the roster includes transfer forward Brenda Bierlink, returnee guard Donnie Wada, and three freshmen— forwards Kerri Brown and Alayna Keppler and guard Becky Hudson.

Keltner averaged 13.5 points and 6.0 rebounds last year while ranking among the national leaders in free-throw shooting (.797, 122-153). Aardahl averaged 3.4 assists and keyed a Western defense that limited opponents to 58.4 points on .398 field-goal shooting. A major question mark is Kuiken, who averaged 7.9 points off the bench last winter, including 10.1 in the six post-season playoff games; however, a chronically dislocated kneecap could force her out of the lineup.

"We have a lot of work to do," Goodrich said. "We might take our lumps early, but from the middle of the season on, I expect us to be a solid ball team."
