News for Alumni and Friends of Western Washington University

VOL 8, NO. 1

Alumni are cruisin' for fun

Western alumni love the water and cruising on it. So the Alumni Association will help four chapters and the Life Member Club to cast off again this year for cruises on the West Coast and East Coast.

There are plenty of other Alumni Chapter events and reunions for landlubbers, too, so look inside to see how you can keep connected to WWU for the coming year.

Your continued support of Western benefits current students and faculty who look to you for mentoring, internship opportunities, scholarships and research support. And don't forget that you reap the benefit of staying in touch with a favorite faculty member and networking with other WWU graduates in the career and social arenas. Why not have fun, too?

Boat cruises on the West Coast include the annual dinner cruise for life members, departing from Elliott Bay in Seattle; the Skagit Valley Alumni Chapter's dinner-cruise through Deception Pass in the spring; and the highly successful San Francisco Bay cruise, which the Northern California Alumni Chapter will present again in the spring.

On the East Coast, the Washington, D.C., Alumni Chapter will reprise its Potomac River dinner-dance cruise May 4, with inspiring views of the capital's national monuments illuminated at night. And the New England Alumni Chapter will host a Boston Harbor cruise April 27.

Alumni from northern California enjoyed a cruise in San Francisco Bay in March. At left, Northern California Alumni Chapter steering committee members Meg ('78) and Mark Sundseth ('89), board the "Brunch Cruise" boat.

Reunions include water activities too. The classes of 1956 and 1957, for instance, enjoyed a day at Lakewood on Lake Whatcom in summer 2000, which was arranged by Roland Saylor ('56). The classes of 1950-52 spent a day of their reunion weekend at the A.S. facility in June 2001.

Contact Alumni House at

(360) 650-3353 or (800) 676-6885 to plan a reunion for your class or an event for the chapter in your area.

And don't forget that Homecoming Weekend is also a great time to come back to campus to show your support of Western. See the back page for details of a week of activities beginning Oct. 1.

Experienced Vikings face toughest-ever schedule

Coming off a 7-3 season and its fourth Columbia Football Association championship in the last six years, an experienced Western football squad sets out to face the toughest schedule in school history.

A total of 36 letter winners, including seven offensive starters and eight defensive starters, return this fall for coach Rob Smith, the top coach in school history in both total wins (82) and winning percentage (.675).

Western plays an 11-game schedule that sees the Vikings meet two NCAA Division I-AA opponents and log more travel miles than any squad in school history.

Home games will be tough as well. Four of the five teams visiting Civic Stadium had records of .500 or better last season.

All-America candidates lead both sides of the ball for the Vikings.

Quarterback Scott Mitchell and strong safety Erik Totten, both seniors, have established themselves as two of the top NCAA II players anywhere. Totten was named to six All-America teams

For the fifth year in a row, the Vikings are favored to win a league title. Western football garnered three of four first-place votes in the pre-season coaches' poll for the Great Northwest Athletic Conference.

The schedule includes the Oct. 6 Homecoming game against South Dakota State University. See the back page for more on Homecoming.

last year, being a first-team pick by the American Football Coaches Association as a punt returner and by Division2football.com as a defensive back, as well as being a first-team Verizon Academic All-American. Mitchell was the CFA Offensive Player of the Year.

If the Vikings, who haven't had a losing season since 1990, win another league championship, the title will be different this year. Simon Fraser has left and the four remaining CFA teams are all charter members of newly formed Great Northwest Athletic Conference.

VEHICLE RESEARCH INSTITUTE DEBUTS VIKING XXX

Western alumni attending the annual Seattle Business Forum last March were the first to see the Viking XXX, the revolutionary Formula SAE racing car built and designed at Western's Vehicle Research Institute. The Viking XXX, dubbed the "Triple X," features a custom, student-built V-8 engine and transmission and is composed of more than 90 percent recycled Boeing materials.

WWU PARTNERS WITH GRADE SCHOOL ARTISTS

More than 45 WWU art education students, along with professors and professional artists put art into practice last spring by teaching local elementary school students about pottery, African printmaking, butterfly paintings and sculpture. The children's artwork was displayed on the walls of selected business in downtown Bellingham during the first Children's Gallery Walk in May. The program is the result of Western's new partnership with the Whatcom County Arts Education Consortia.

88 HONORED FOR MULTICULTURAL ACHIEVEMENT

Western honored 88 Whatcom County high school students last year for promoting multiculturalism and a commitment to a culturally diverse environment. Eleven students also won Multicultural Achievement Program scholarships, worth $2,000.

APPOINTMENTS AND PROMOTIONS

The following people have joined the WWU family:

- Susanna Yunker, assistant vice president of student affairs and academic support services
- Béla Foltin Jr., University librarian
- Donald (Tim) Wynn, director of facilities management
- Jeffrey Kelly, a junior computer science major, as student trustee
- Professor Kris Bulcroft, vice provost, undergraduate education
- Peggy Zoro, president, Western Foundation Board

SHANNON POINT SCIENTIST WINS NSF GRANT

Kathryn Van Alstyne, a marine scientist at the Shannon Point Marine Center, has received a four-year, $320,000 research grant from the National Science Foundation to fund her research on the ways marine plants use natural chemicals to repel predators.

NSF EXTENDS FUNDING FOR TWO PROGRAMS

The National Science Foundation has renewed its support for a model national program in tribal environmental and natural resources management, offered jointly at Northwest Indian College and Huxley College of Environmental Studies at Western. The NSF grant is for $589,000. The Shannon Point Marine Center also received a $256,512 grant from the NSF to continue a nine-week summer undergraduate research program for the next five years.

COMMUNICATIONS BUILDING GETS GO-AHEAD

With approval of Western's 2001-2003 capital budget, planning continues for the construction of a Communications Building just south of Huxley College. The University plans to develop a new south campus quad, which will include the new Communications Building as well as a proposed Academic Instructional Center.

Basketball teams hope to be repeat champions

The Western men's and women's basketball teams enter the 2001-02 campaign with great hopes of repeating a pair of highly successful seasons.

The men last year had the finest season in their century of competition, going 27-4, winning the West Regional of the NCAA Division II National Tournament and reaching the semifinals of the NCAA II Elite Eight.

Coach Brad Jackson has all but one player returning from the national tournament team as the Vikings aim to make back-to-back national appearances for the first time in school history.

The women were 21-8 last year, reaching national post-season play for the fourth consecutive year. Seven letter winners, including the top three scorers, return for coach Carmen Dolfo.

Both the men and the women play in a new conference this season, as Western and nine other schools have left the PacWest to form the Great Northwest Athletic Conference.

Men's team has high scorers

Leading the way for the men is All-America candidate guard Jacob Stevenson, one of eight seniors on the roster. Stevenson, who was the MVP of the West Regional and a first-team Pacific West Conference West Division all-star, averaged 16.1 points and 4.4 assists a game, and enters the season already tied for 13th in school history in career scoring with 1,008 points.

Two other returning senior starters are forward A.J. Giesa, who averaged 14.5 points and 5.7 rebounds, and guard Shelton Diggs, who averaged 14.2 points and 3.9 rebounds, leading the Vikings in 3-point shooting (50-124, .403). Giesa was a first-team all-PacWest West Division pick and Diggs a second-team selection. Both have been starters since midway through their freshman seasons.

The fourth starter is junior center Mike Palm, who averaged 14.6 points and 7.3 rebounds, leading Western in field goal percentage (.547), free throw percentage (.846), and blocked shots (1.1). Giesa, Diggs and Palm are all on pace to reach 1,000 career points sometime this season.

Jackson, who was named the PacWest and West Region Coach of the Year, enters his 17th season as the winningest coach in school history with a 299-183 record.

Women in new conference

The lone seniors for the women are guards Jodie Kaczor and Julie Walker. Kaczor, a first-team all-PacWest selection last year who was the only Viking to start all 27 games, averaged 11.9 points and 2.7 assists and was fifth nationally in NCAA II in 3-point percentage (79-185, .427). Walker averaged 8.3 points and a team-high 4.0 assists.

The other returning starter is junior forward Stacey Miller, who averaged 9.1 points and 4.5 rebounds.

Western's top scorer last season spent most of the year coming off the bench. Sophomore forward-center Jenn McGillivray averaged 12.3 points and 5.2 rebounds while shooting 54.6 percent from the field.

Dolfo enters her 12th season with a career record of 232-94, and has led the Vikings to nine 20-win seasons in the last 11 years.

Distinguished Lecture Series kicks off Oct. 11

Journalist Helen Thomas and futurist Freeman Dyson will come to campus this year as part of Western's Distinguished Lecture Series.

Dyson, who launches the series Oct. 11, is a preeminent physicist, mathematician, futurist and humanitarian.

Recipient of the 2000 Templeton Prize for progress in religion, Dyson has a knack for turning intricate scientific theories into easily understood concepts. He is an emeritus professor at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J., where he taught for more than 40 years.

Thomas, dean of the White House press corps, will speak on Thursday, Jan. 17.

Funded by The Western Foundation, the Distinguished Lecture Series is free, but tickets are required. Tickets for alumni and community available Oct. 2 at Village Books and PAC Box Office, or by sending SASE to WWU, PAC Box Office, Bellingham, WA, 98225-9109. Tickets available to WWU students and employees Sept. 26 at PAC Box office. Info: 650-7545.

Point of View

by President Karen W. Morse

Western's capital budget funding is endorsement of our commitment to high-quality education

Last fall I wrote you that Seattle Times business columnist Stephen Dunphy characterized Western as "on a roll," after a visit to campus. At that time, I said we would not rest on our laurels – and we haven't!

Western continues to be acknowledged as a first-rate campus, this time by Washington's legislators. The University received the largest capital budget in school history when Gov. Gary Locke signed the 2001-2003 capital budget, which included $57.1 million in state funds for Western.

The new two-year plan provides Western $32.5 million to construct a Communications Building, $11.7 million for campus infrastructure development at the south end of campus, and $12.8 million for preservation, renovation and access projects.

It also provides $115,000 to develop plans for a new Academic Instructional Center that will become the second major facility in the new south campus quad.

Already planned or under construction at that end of campus are the Campus Services Facility, slated for completion by summer 2002, which will house public safety offices and the student health center, and a Student Recreation Center, with construction scheduled to begin in spring 2002. These projects will mean some upheaval in the south part of campus, so have patience when you visit.

I am pleased that the governor and the Legislature have provided us with a crucial tool for managing growth while maintaining and enhancing the quality of Western's programs.

This capital budget is an endorsement of the University's moderate growth plan and continues the confidence that the Legislature has expressed for a number of years in the University's commitment to high-quality undergraduate and graduate education.

The Legislature has essentially given us the green light to expand development of the new south campus quad over the next several years. As we do so, we will continue our strong commitment to enhancing Western's lovely campus during this next building phase.

With Homecoming set for Oct. 5-7, I cordially invite you to come back to campus and see for yourself how we are striving to make Western the state's best residential undergraduate school for the 21st century.

Accent on Alumni

Alumni Association grants 21 scholarships for 2001-2002 year

Thanks to the generosity of thousands of WWU alumni and other supporters, 21 students will be attending Western next year on Alumni Association scholarships ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 per year.

The WWU Alumni Association Scholarship Fund was begun in 1982 and, through donations and prudent investments, has grown to nearly $600,000. Earnings from investments of this fund are what make these scholarships possible.

In addition, the Association will make one $3,000 award in the name of the late Mildred Trunkey ('22), who left the Alumni Association a bequest last year.

Two other $3,000 scholarships will be awarded on behalf of WWU Alumni Club life members. Nearly 600 Western alumni have taken the life member option over the past 15 years and their life membership dues are making these awards possible.

Four additional students will be attending Western next fall on $10,000 ($2,500 per year for up to four years) WWU License Plate Scholarships. These awards are made possible by the hundreds of alumni who have purchased WWU Collegiate License Plates or renewed their existing ones. The initial fee for WWU plates is $40 and annual renewals are only $30 (in addition to the normal $30 tab fee). In both cases, the state returns $28 of each license fee to Western to be used for scholarships each year.

Those students selected for these awards for the 2001-2002 academic year include: Shannon Budelman, Tawny Conner, Emily Johnson, Rosemary Garner, Krista Almaas, Jamie Houghton, Kimberly Norton, Brent Olson, Maya Zeller, Lisa Hobbs, Bina Botgati, Kevin Rupp, Rita Johansen, Lindsey Savisky, Cynthia Chahine, Megan Riddle, Kristen Chesire, Christy Ott, Jennifer Wilbur, Maya Tomlin and Jonathon Mumley.

Put the WWU Viking ship on your license plate today

A new law that requires motorists to replace license plates issued before 1991 provides a great opportunity for Western alumni and friends to show their school spirit and support the Alumni scholarship fund by purchasing WWU Collegiate plates for their cars.

If you are required to get new plates in the coming year, request a collegiate plate with the Viking ship on it by taking your renewal notice to any county auditor or subagent license office.

The plates cost $40 initially, plus the regular $30 tab fee. After the first year, the fee goes down to $30 per year, plus a $30 tab fee.

Out of that fee, $28 goes directly to the Western Alumni Scholarship Fund to help current and future students attend Western.

Larry Taylor, Alumni Association president, said he is proud to have the Alumni Association logo on three of his cars.

"I feel that having the license plate, plus the Alumni frame is an excellent way to brag about my involvement in the best university

Why buy a WWU license plate?

- show alumni pride
- raise scholarship money
- set good example for other alumni
- give free advertising for WWU in the state," Taylor said. "It's a great way to advertise Western."

The collegiate license plate program began in 1995 and has enabled WWU to offer four $10,000 scholarships so far.

The plates can be purchased at any licensing office, even if you aren't required to get new plates. And they can be transferred from vehicle to vehicle, as long as the owner is the same. There is an additional $3 fee if you apply for the plates in person at the licensing office.

For more information about the WWU plates, or information about scholarship applications, call the Alumni House at (360) 650-3353.

The Western Foundation honors three volunteers

The Western Foundation honored Seattle television anchor Joyce Taylor ('84), WWU legislative liaison Judy McNickle ('66) of Olympia and Bellevue insurance executive Vic Parker as volunteers of the year.

Taylor, the alumni volunteer, secured a five-figure grant to support the work of students at Western's Vehicle Research Institute.

Campus volunteer, McNickle led the effort to raise $190,000 in gifts and pledges to establish the Ralph Munro Endowment for Civic Education at Western in honor of the five-term Washington secretary of state, a fellow 1966 political science graduate.

Parker, chair of the Foundation's Western-in-Seattle Committee, which organizes the annual Seattle Business Forum, was honored as the outstanding community volunteer.

Field hockey reunion:

Western may honor two distinguished alumni in the future

Nominations are now being accepted for Western's Distinguished Alumna/us Award for 2002. And a second award to honor younger alumni is in the planning stages.

If you know a former classmate, friend or professional colleague who has distinguished him or herself in service to the community, profession or WWU, your recommendation is needed.

The award is based on a lifetime of achievement in the recipient's chosen field or a record of contribution to humanity in general.

Nominees must have actually graduated from Western Washington University or one of its predecessor institutions. Nominations should include a letter of nomination, at least three additional letters of support and as much supporting material as possible, including newspaper and/or magazine articles, etc.

A banquet honoring the 2002 recipient(s) will be held on campus in the spring of 2002.

All nominations must be post-marked no later than Dec. 31, 2001 and mailed to:

Chris issues a fair warning: He's casting off in February

If someone had told me, back in the very early 1970s when I was a Western student, that I would one day be the institution's director of Alumni Relations and executive director of the WWU Alumni Association, I'm sure my response would have been something like: "Who, me? Are you crazy?"

Ten or so years later when I had found my way to the lofty post of Public Information director, I remember listening to Steve Inge, Western's first and then current Alumni Relations director, describe to me what he did for a living: Putting on receptions, dinners, programs and other events in various parts of the state and the country, working with 20 energetic and visionary volunteer board members and a few other things he conveniently left out.

Again, a question emerged: "And you get paid for that?"

These thoughts and memories are flashing back to me now because, after 16 years as Alumni Relations director and 27 years working at Western, I will be retiring – but not until the end of February 2002. I want to give you fair warning.

Just stating that fact is more difficult than I imagined and certainly calls for a bit of reflection. Attempting to pinpoint the major highlights of these past 16 years and the 11 years preceding is a daunting task. I've spent a bit of time thinking about that. There's only one answer, however. It's the people.

I've worked with and for five University presidents and a couple of acting presidents. Numerous talented individuals have worked in Alumni Relations with me. Some are still here. Some stayed a short time; others longer. All had an impact.

Probably more than 100 Western graduates have served on the Western Alumni Association Board of Directors during that time. Fifteen of those people provided leadership as Alumni Association president. As do the current 25 board members, all gave generously of their time, talents, creativity and a lasting loyalty to WWU.

And then there are the thousands of Western alumni, former students and friends of Western. I've met many of those thousands over the years. Some have returned for Homecoming. Others have attended regional or chapter events in various parts of the state and country. Some of the above and others are loyal dues-paying members of the WWU Alumni Club.

Even more drop by Alumni House just to catch us up on what they have been doing, and many more attend their 50-year reunion each year. Many have assisted in our legislative relations efforts over the years.

Together we have taken Western and the WWU Alumni Association from one level to another – always upward. When I began this job in 1986 there was one commencement ceremony in June each year. Today we have both a morning and an afternoon ceremony in June. We also have commencement ceremonies in December, March and August. Carver Gym is always full.

In 1986, your Alumni Association gave out two $500 per year Alumni scholarships. This coming academic year more than 20 current students are attending Western on more than $32,000 in Alumni scholarships ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 per year. Another four students have been awarded WWU Collegiate License Plate Scholarships of $2,500 per year for up to four years.

Sixteen years ago, the WWU Alumni Association's annual budget was roughly $22,000. This year, it is more than $230,000. More than 5,000 of you have joined the WWU Alumni Club, 600 as Life Members. There should be and will be more in the future.

The WWU Alumni Scholarship Endowment has grown from $42,000 in 1986 to nearly $600,000 today. Alumni Way near Old Main now sports 3,000 inscribed bricks. The association now has 22 operating chapters spread across the state and the country.

In just the past five years, the Viking fast pitch softball team won the national championship. The Viking football team played for the national championship. The Viking women's basketball team went all the way to the Final Four, and the Viking men's team did the same thing this past year. Talk about taking it up a level or two!

Today, Western is recognized nationally as one of the very best comprehensive institutions in the nation. We are on all kinds of "best" and "top" lists.

All of these accomplishments came about because of the involvement of you: Western's alumni. From the office staff, to board members to regional and chapter leaders to Viking sports fans to dedicated faculty and administrators, you have helped Western rise from one level to another.

I have been blessed to be a part of this growth and success, to have met and become friends with so many interesting individuals. All of us have one thing in common – a great university and a growing Alumni Association.

And I'm fully confident that Western's next Alumni Association executive director will help lead us one, two or three levels higher. A search committee is being formed to find that individual.

Anyone interested in one of the most unique and interesting jobs around? Just think about the people you will meet and work with!

Reflections on Elias A. Bond

By Nick Bond ('68)

My grandfather spent 40 years teaching at Western. Some people may have put him on a pedestal, turning his person into myth. But in reality, he was only human with attendant strengths and weaknesses, just like any other human.

My grandfather enjoyed sitting in a big chair with a pencil and paper, using a wooden board for a writing surface. He liked to play with numbers the way some people do crossword puzzles. I wish someone had saved that board.

My grandfather could write Latin with one hand while simultaneously writing Greek with the other.

My grandfather was a wizard when teaching mathematics to aspiring teachers and others.

My grandfather broke most every mechanical device he ever tried to fix.

My grandfather could, with a double-bladed axe, fall a fir tree in any direction he cared to, needing very little room for error.

My grandfather, after purchasing his first automobile, hadn't the slightest idea it needed antifreeze. He was not a particularly good driver.

My grandfather could grow sweet peas the size of blueberries. His strawberries were the size of golf balls.

My grandfather had no appreciation whatever of the value of history. Of history, he told his wife, to whom he was married 56 years, "Who cares about the old bones of a dead past?" Florence knew it was more a statement than a question.

My grandfather earned his Ph.D. at age 60. He was very busy with teaching and other stuff and could scarcely find the time. Each of his four grown children earned their Ph.D.s.

So my grandfather was, in some respects, a great man. But about history, he was, I suspect, wrong.

(Elias Bond, for whom Bond Hall is named, taught math from 1907 to 1947 and was nationally recognized in the field of mathematics. He was also involved in planning many recreational activities, including hikes to Mount Baker and salmon bakes.)

Experienced Vikings

VIKING FOOTBALL: Senior strong safety Erik Totten was named to six All-American teams last season and won Western's Male Athlete of the Year and Male Scholar Athlete of the Year.

The Vikings averaged 409.6 yards and a school-record 37.8 points a game last season, ranking eighth nationally in scoring and 25th in total offense. Many of the key elements return, including Mitchell, the top two receivers and four starting offensive linemen.

Mitchell threw for 1,975 yards and 21 touchdowns last season, ranking eighth nationally in pass efficiency (148.5), and also ran for 260 yards, the most ever by a Western quarterback, and eight scores. He enters the year fifth in school history in career passing yardage (4,361) and is presently Western's career completion percentage leader (346-575, .602). Furthermore, he's thrown just 10 interceptions in two years.

He'll operate behind an offensive line led by senior center Nick Giralmo, a unanimous first-team all-CFA pick last season; junior tackle Joaquin Paratore-McNabb; and senior Raymond Gombiski, both second-team all-league picks.

Leading the receiving corps is junior Greg Dykstra, who led Western in every receiving category with 42 catches for 717 yards and nine touchdowns, earning first-team all-CFA recognition. He needs just 25 more catches to move into the top 10 in school history in career receptions. Another returning starter is senior slotback Sean Marshall, who had 39 receptions for 388 yards and three touchdowns.

At running back, sophomore Nyle Chambers and junior Devin Martin return. Chambers ran for 415 yards and five touchdowns last year. Martin rushed for 321 yards and two scores.

Defensively, the Vikings ranked 14th nationally against the run (94.9 avg.) and 23rd in points allowed (18.1) last season.

Senior end Steve Bernardy, a second-team all-CFA pick last year, is the mainstay of the front four. Of his 24 tackles last season, 11 were behind the line of scrimmage, including seven sacks. The other returning starter is junior tackle Scott Roberts, who had 26 stops, with eight of them, including four sacks, for losses.

Six letter winners return at linebacker, led by returning starters Lann Olson, a sophomore, and Wayne Parker, a senior. Olson, the middle linebacker, was tied for second on the team in tackles last year with 61. Parker had 43 tackles, including 11 for losses.

Totten, who tied for second in tackles last season (61) and had two interceptions, leads the secondary.

The top cornerback is junior Martez Johnson, a second-team all-West Region pick. Johnson forced five turnovers last year with three interceptions and two forced fumbles.

Western opened the season by hosting Central Oklahoma Aug. 30, the earliest start in school history.

GO VIKINGS!

True Viking fans will follow the men's football and basketball teams on the road this year, cheering on Vikings victories and tailgating to the max.

Alumni plan to have a cheering section in Durango, Colo., Sept. 8 as WWU's football stars play Ft. Lewis College and in San Luis Obispo, Calif., Sept. 29 as the Vikings play Cal Poly University.

They'll be in New Haven, Conn., too, when WWU plays the University of New Haven Oct. 27 and in California Nov. 10 when the Vikings take on UC-Davis.

If hoops is your game, join members of the Seattle Alumni Chapter Nov. 8 as the men's basketball team plays the University of Washington in a special exhibition in Husky territory.

VU REMODEL

Contractors were completing the $22 million renovation of the Viking Union complex this summer. The new VU has a new food court, a new bookstore and new office space for Associated Students and other organizations. The goal of the renovation was to create a sense of community and make the campus focal point more user friendly.

Great Teachers Win WWU Awards

Western saluted four faculty members at Commencement ceremonies in June for their excellence in teaching, research and diversity achievement.

The four, nominated by faculty, students and alumni, distinguished themselves among an already distinguished group of several hundred WWU teachers.

Geology professor Thor Hansen won the Peter J. Elich Excellence in Teaching Award for the College of Arts & Sciences. Woodring College of Education professor Angela Harwood received the Excellence in Teaching Award representing Western's other five colleges.

English professor John Purdy collected this year's Olscamp Faculty Research Award. Woodring College of Education professor Karen Hoelscher earned the Diversity Achievement Award.

The teaching and diversity awards include a $1,500 stipend to use for research, teaching equipment/supplies or professional enhancement. The research award recipient receives $1,000.

All of the awards are provided through donations to The Western Foundation.

The Peter J. Elich Excellence in Teaching Award recognizes Peter J. Elich's dedicated years of service as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

The Olscamp Award is made possible through an endowment provided by Paul J. Olscamp, president of Western from 1975 to 1982.

Professor Thor Hansen teaches students that learning goes beyond the classroom. Hansen, who came to Western in 1985, uses a hands-on approach, with objects, skits and stories as his primary teaching tools.

His students participate in research that directly expands experience and knowledge. He is also working with middle-school children from across the country who study science by testing an authentic scientific hypothesis about marine ecology.

"What thrills all professors most is to get students excited about learning," Hansen said. He has worked closely with Western's Center for Instructional Innovation and is one of four faculty members featured on the center's Web site this year for creatively incorporating the use of technology into curriculum.

Thor Hansen

Since joining the Woodring faculty in 1991, Angela Harwood has consistently received recognition from colleagues, students and community for her dedication to service-learning.

For the past four years, she has worked with a former student, now an eighth-grade teacher at Fairhaven Middle School, to develop and implement Project Connect, a nationally recognized collaborative service-learning program. In it, Western and Fairhaven Middle School students provide services at 23 different community sites, visiting the elderly, assisting in daycare centers and improving the environment.

Harwood teaches curriculum and instruction methods courses for undergraduate and graduate students, and has developed and taught a special series of courses for students who want to become middle school teachers.

She has also worked with a colleague to develop and teach the "Gen Y" Web site-based technology education course in collaboration with Shuksan Middle and Ferndale High Schools.

Angela Harwood

Karen Hoelscher, a professor in Woodring College of Education, is known by her colleagues and students as someone who brings the value of diversity into the classroom and challenges people to expand their current views.

"Karen is deeply committed to embracing the power that results from diversity in a community," a colleague said. "This is reflected in her scholarship, teaching and service to the University, but it also pervades all aspects of her personal and professional life."

During her teaching career, she has worked with convicted felons working to become carpenters in Wisconsin, Eskimo children in Alaska and young adults at Woodring for whom she plans class projects involving senior citizens, fifth-graders and others with a wide range of cultural experiences and backgrounds.

Hoelscher, who came to Western in 1992, is co-chair of the Kaleidoscope Project, a 25-member group comprised of President Karen Morse, faculty, staff and students, which fosters multicultural experience on campus. She has also served as chair of the Woodring College Diversity Task Force from 1998-2000.

In addition to her teaching responsibilities, Hoelscher is active in curriculum and policy development in local schools and serves as a parent volunteer in her daughter's fourth-grade classroom. She volunteers with her family in the summer Circulos de Manos program, which provides evening activities to children of migrant farm families in Whatcom and Skagit counties.

English professor John Purdy's dedication and outstanding contribution to Native American studies have played crucial roles in the advancement of scholarly knowledge in his field.

He came to Western in 1991, having previously taught in Idaho and Oregon. He chaired the English department three times, most recently from 1999 to winter 2001. As creator of the Native American studies minor and a teacher of Native American literature at Western, Purdy shares his knowledge and expertise with students of all levels, frequently involving undergraduate and graduate students in his research.

Purdy's research and scholarship expands beyond national borders.

He is the recipient of three Fulbright Awards to Germany and New Zealand. Over the past 10 years, he has delivered 19 papers to national and international scholarly audiences in Germany, Greece, Mexico, France, the Netherlands, Portugal, Italy and Austria.

A well-known specialist in the field of Native American literature, he has published three books, 10 academic journal articles and authored 10 invited book chapters.

2001 volleyball team has a core of solid defensive players

A year ago, Western's volleyball team was one of the surprise teams of the West Region, bouncing back from its first losing season in 15 years to post a 24-9 record and reach the Pacific West Conference tournament.

This season, three starters are back among nine letter winners for second-year coach Diane Flick. It's an experienced group, but also one that needs players to step into leadership roles left by three players who completed their eligibility after starting at least two seasons.

Leading the way are the two returning outside hitters, senior Niki Smith and junior Shannon Rowland. Rowland was an honorable mention all-league selection last season, averaging 3.14 kills and 2.8 digs per game.

The third returning starter is senior middle blocker Kirsten Mann, a three-year letter winner who had 262 kills.

The lone returning setter is sophomore Liz Bishop, who saw action in 47 games last season, averaging 7.89 assists a game.

The Vikings have a solid core of defensive specialists, led by senior Kim Formo, a three-year letter winner, and sophomore Gelinda McKenna.

Western will also enter a new conference, the Great Northwest Athletic Conference, this season, although it won't have a dramatic impact on the schedule. The eight teams in the West Division of the PacWest last season are also in the GNAC, and are joined by Alaska Anchorage and Alaska Fairbanks.

Investments in Excellence

Scholarships help recipients to excel

Susan Muro ('01) won two scholarships during her senior year at Western, and the opportunities they created for her to excel were much more than she had ever imagined.

The Covington, Wash., resident had sought several scholarships because she had promised her mother she would pay for her last two years of college herself.

During her two years at Green River Community College getting her AA degree, Muro had seen how her mother, a single parent, struggled to pay tuition.

So, during her junior year at Western, Muro used her summer wages, student loans and pay from her weekend job during the school year to pay for her room and board herself.

Still, Muro found, "I was always feeling strained and pushed for time."

The scholarship money awarded for her senior year (a $450 George Ruggles scholarship for communication majors and the $1,000 Sene and Louella Carlile scholarship) ended all that.

She stopped worrying so much about money and started concentrating more on her studies. She got involved in the communication club on campus, creating a Web site for it and planning educational programs such as a forum on how to get an internship.

"It allowed me to excel rather than just to complete" the bachelor's degree, Muro said.

And it sure paid off. Muro was named the outstanding graduate from the communication department at the June commencement.

Muro is just one of the thousands of Western students who received more than $5 million in scholarships last year from Western, the state of Washington and private scholarship funds.

The Western Foundation last year awarded 546 scholarships totaling more than $700,000, all from the generous contributions of alumni, parents, corporations and others.

"Scholarship support is essential to make it possible for us to keep the doors wide open and to encourage the best students to come through them," according to WWU President Karen Morse.

And although scholarship dollars have increased 248 percent the last eight years, the university faces the major challenge of having many more exceptional students knocking on its doors over ars at the June 16 commencement, covered almost all of his tuition costs during five years at Western through Western scholarships, tuition waivers and private scholarship awards.

The Blaine resident found paying jobs during his summers. But during the school year he was able to volunteer as a soccer coach, a tutor at Lummi Tribal High School and as a member of the Native American Talent Search Project and to play intramural sports. Known for his outstanding research work on the history of the Ku Klux Klan in Washington state, which challenged most scholars' interpretations of the organization, he also was an active member of Phi Alpha Theta, an honor society for history scholars, and graduated with a 3.98 grade point average.

"I wouldn't have been able to do that without the scholarships," Kuttel said.

Scholarships also pushed Luz Gonzalez, a senior from the Tri-Cities area, to succeed at being the first in her large family to graduate from high school and to go to college.

Scholarship money "allows me to focus on my studies so I can maintain a high GPA," said Gonzalez, the winner of a James Michael Haskell Memorial Scholarship, Multicultural Achievement Program Scholarship and several private scholarships. "It also forces me to maintain a high GPA, so it works both ways."

Gonzalez, who will graduate after winter quarter 2002 with a double major in biology and Spanish and a minor in chemistry, has participated in numerous volunteer and extracurricular activities while at Western and hopes to serve economically disadvantaged and underprivileged people as a physician some day.

The scholarships have meant not only financial support, but emotional, as well, she says. "It's helping me to accomplish a lifelong dream."

Generous friends donate $3.9 million to WWU

Another successful fiscal year ended for Western on June 30, 2001, with $3.9 million in private support for Western students, faculty and programs.

Overall, 13,850 gifts were received this year. A record number of programs and projects benefited from this support and Western students were the true recipients of your generosity.

The Western Foundation's overall asset base reached $23.7 million. Assets include $14 million in endowment funds, a 22 percent growth over the past five years.

Western alumni made a significant impact. Some 5,085 WWU graduates contributed $724,000 last year.

An all-time high was established for the number of members of the President's Club - donors of $1,000 or more per year ($500 per year for those 39 years of age or younger). One hundred sixty-one new members joined the President's Club this year, bringing the total membership to 812.

Parents of current Western students contributed $88,985 comprising 16 percent of all donors. Friends of Western (33 percent of all donors) made gifts in excess of $1.3 million. An additional $1.8 million came from corporations, foundations and organizations.

With each passing year, the number of students and educational programs at Western increase. Your support allows the university to continue to offer the best educational opportunities to our leaders of tomorrow. For that, we are truly grateful.

A list of those who made a contribution of $100 or more between July 1, 2000 and June 30, 2001 begins on the next page.

The Western Foundation 2000-01 Honor Roll of Private Support

The Western Foundation and Western Washington University are pleased to recognize the generous private financial support received during the 2000-01 giving year. Your gifts to enhance Western programs totaled $3.9 million from 9,633 donors. This honor roll recognizes the individuals who made gifts of $100 or more to The Western Foundation between July 1, 2000 and June 30, 2001.

Private gifts provide opportunities for Western students, faculty and programs that state funding alone can not support. Academic scholarships, expansion of campus-wide technology, access to world-renowned artists and lecturers create a learning environment charged with energy, creativity and insight. Every dollar makes a difference and enables Western to continue to be recognized as one of the top comprehensive universities in the nation. On behalf of all who teach and learn at Western, thank you.

The President's Club

President's Club members are the cornerstone of support for Western Washington University. This year, 161 new members joined the President's Club, bringing the total membership to 812. President's Club members are active partners with the University and play a unique role in Western's success story.

President's Club level gifts may be designated to the Campus Enrichment Fund, which supports the critical needs of a variety of innovative campus-wide projects, or to a specific college, department or program. For information on how you can support Western Washington University through the President's Club, please call Mark Bagley at 360-650-3612.

In addition to the more conventional gift of cash or supplies, The Western Foundation also accepts gifts of property, appreciated stock or securities and estate gifts. Giving is a personal choice and the types of gifts made are as varied as the interests of our donors themselves.

All gifts to The Western Foundation are tax deductible as allowable by law. A number offer particular tax or estate planning advantages that may be useful to you or your family. But most importantly, each gift makes a difference. The Western Foundation staff would be happy to discuss all gift options in greater detail with you and your attorney or financial planner. Please call 360-650-3027 for further information.

The Old Main Society

Planned gifts provide a resource of funding for the University. Just as annual gifts satisfy many of Western's immediate needs, planned gifts provide for future needs.

The Old Main Society recognizes alumni and friends who have made arrangement with Western Washington University to provide gifts through their estate plans or other planned giving options. Acknowledging donors during their lifetime for pending gifts to Western is the primary goal of the Old Main Society. Membership begins once documentation has been completed naming Western as a beneficiary through a bequest, trust, annuity or life insurance plan.

Participants enjoy a variety of special benefits and, in the case of certain irrevocable gift arrangements, are entitled to Lifetime or Benefactor President's Club membership. For information, contact Al Froderberg, Director of Planned Giving and Senior Advisor to the President, at 360-650-4499.

SURF'S UP

The Western Foundation website will have a new look and a new address in September. Log on to <http://www.foundation.wvu.edu> and check out the exciting new projects and opportunities available for Western alumni and friends alike. You'll get the latest information on development activities and if you update your "snail" mail and e-mail addresses, your name will be placed in a drawing to win an official WVU Viking sweatshirt! Set that bookmark. The surf is up!

Homecoming: Oct. 1-7, 2001

Homecoming: The Western Roundup

Howdy Pardners and welcome to Homecoming 2001. We're callin' it The Western Roundup.

This year's festivities is gonna be finer than frog's hair and packed full of fun the whole week leadin' up to the Homecoming Weekend.

We're literally going to "kick it off" with a buckin' bull at the Info Fair in Red Square Sept. 24. That's a buckin' bull filled with air!

Four prize players will position themselves at each corner of this ride and pull the ropes, hoping to buck that cowboy off the bull. Take a look-see or try that bull yerself! We'll also be servin' up some free vittles.

Friday, Oct. 5

BRAND SPANKIN' NEW THIS HERE YEAR: Cirque de Flambe

- 7 p.m. - Red Square: The festivities for Friday evening will take place on Red Square this year. Fireworks of a different form, vittles and a live rock n' roll band, The Walrus, to round out an evenin' you won't want to miss.
- Cirque de Flambe: The world's only vaudeville circus of fire and pyrotechnics. Smell the smoke as the clowns burn, see the flames lick at the daring, and feel the heat as the spectacular blazes. Fiery fun like you have never seen before. Starts at 8:30 p.m.
- We'll also be servin' up doughnuts, the Homecoming Raspberry Brownie, hot chocolate and cider.
- Homecoming DJ Dance, VU Lounge. Casual, no date required. We ain't gonna promise square dancin' but it's still a heap of fun. Supports the ever talented Viking Cheer Squad. Tickets at the door.
