Salish Sea neighbors want to know.

For kids and parents staying home to stop novel coronavirus

Junior SeaDoctors

HOMESCHOOL is SeaDoc Society's offering for families in this uncertain time

Choose from:

- Simple activities for kids with busy parents
- Deep dive activities for teachers or homeschooling to share with their students at home

Resource Hub for Teachers

For Teachers:

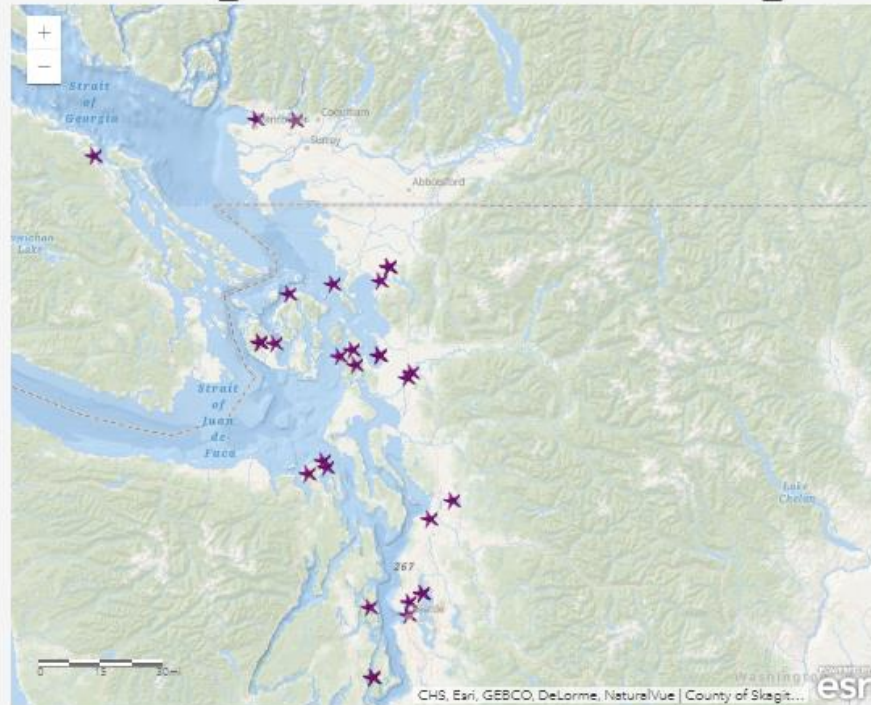

BRING THE ECOSYSTEM TO YOUR CLASSROOM WITH OUR EXPLORE THE SALISH SEA CURRICULUM.

Teachers, Marine Educators and Scientists, and Traditional Ecological Knowledge-sharers: receive training, books, and marine expert support in your community (North Vancouver, BC) at our next Explore the Salish Sea Educator Workshop. Click here for details and registration.

Adventure-filled, NGSS-aligned units to build ocean literacy in your students and communities, based on the Nautilus Award-winning book, Explore the Salish Sea: A Nature Guide for Kids. Find the book here.

Marine Experts Map

- Find standards-aligned science curriculum based on the Salish Sea in our own backyard for grade 5 (scalable for 4th-8th).
- Request free class sets of Explore the Salish Sea for grade 5 classes in low-income schools
- Connect with marine experts in your community with the Marine Experts Map or connect with local teachers by adding your organization to the map.
- Find the next SeaDoc Workshop near you.

Educator Workshops

- Bring classroom teachers together with Marine Educators, Tribal and First Nations Ecological Knowledge sharers, and Marine Scientists to build relationships to support Salish Sea learning in each community
- Provide a hands-on science lesson to experience firsthand
- Receive training in science standards, NGSS or BC's New Science Standards
- Begin conservation project planning in working groups with community partners.

Because getting kids on the beach,
doing real science
with real scientists lets them

know, connect with, and protect the Salish Sea now and for a lifetime. Join SeaDoc in helping kids Explore the Salish Sea
