

About the Authors

Shagdaryn Bira is a member of the Mongolian Academy of Sciences since its inception in 1960, the Secretary-General of the International Association for Mongol Studies. He is a member of the UNESCO Scientific Committee for writing the History of Civilizations of Central Asia and of the Mongolian National Commission for UNESCO. He authored numerous books and more than 100 articles on Mongolian medieval history and traditional culture, Buddhism in Mongolia, and its linkages with Central Asian countries, including India and Tibet. He was awarded Mongolia's highest academic title, Honored Science Worker of Mongolia. He is a laureate of the National Prize of Mongolia and a honorary member of the International Academy of Indian Culture, Honorary Professor of Inner Mongolia University, Honorary Doctor of Moscow State University of International Relations, Honorary Member of the Central Eurasian Studies Society, and a member of the New York Academy of Sciences. He was awarded the Denis Sinor Medal of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland.

Paul D. Buell is an Adjunct Professor at Western Washington University. He is a co-author of A Soup for the Qan : Chinese Dietary Medicine of the Mongol Era as Seen in Hu Szu-Hui's Yin-shan cheng-yao (2000), author of Historical Dictionary of the Mongol World Empire (2003) and of more than 100 other books, book chapters and articles. He is currently contributing to a comparative history of the horse and veterinary medicine in China. His specialties are the history of the Mongolian empire, comparative medical history, modern Central Asian politics and culture, and maritime history. His co-author, Ngan Le, was born in Vietnam and is currently an undergraduate majoring in economics at the University of Washington. She plans to become an art critic and has worked on the influence of Goethe's color theories on modern art in addition to hunger in Mongolia.

Alicia J. Campi is the president of the U.S.-Mongolia Advisory Group, the first consultancy company devoted to educational, environmental, technological, and tourist development in Mongolia. She is also the president of the Chinggis Khan Foundation and a member of the Board of Directors of the Mongolia Society. She has authored over fifty speeches, articles, and book chapters. She served as a Foreign Service officer for thirteen years in Asia, including Mongolia, and has travelled to Mongolia twenty-two times.

Mei-hua Lan received her Ph.D. in Inner Asian and Altaic Studies from Harvard University in 1996 with a dissertation entitled Mongolian Independence Movement of 1911: A Pan-Mongolian Endeavor and is currently Associate Professor at National Chengchi University in Taiwan. She specializes in modern Mongolian history and offers several courses concerning written Mongolian, Inner Asian history, and ethnic relations. She is also the author of the book Relations Between Outer Mongolia and China Under Tsedenbal, 1952-1984 (2000, in Chinese).

Peter K. Marsh is the resident director of the American Center for Mongolian Studies in Ulaanbaatar. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Mongolia Society and author of The Horse-head Fiddle and the Cosmopolitan Reimagination of Mongolia (to be published in 2006). The current focus of his research is on the interplay between rural and urban musical traditions in Mongolia as part of broader historical trends towards nationalization and modernization.

Henry G. Schwarz is Professor Emeritus of Western Washington University. He currently serves as the president of the Mongolia Society and as vice-president of the International Association for Mongol Studies. He founded the Center for East Asian Studies in 1970 and the Mongolia Program in 1975 at Western Washington University. He is the author of numerous books, including Mongolian Short Stories (1974), Bibliotheca Mongolica (1978), The Minorities of Northern China: A Survey (1984), An Uyghur-English Dictionary (1992), Mongolia and the Mongols: Holdings at Western Washington University (1993) as well as many book chapters and articles.

Bayartsetseg Terbish is currently a Master's candidate in the George Warren Brown School of Social Work of Washington University in St. Louis.

Other Mongolia Titles from Bellingham

Mongolian Historical Writing from 1200 to 1700, by Shagdaryn Bira. 2002. xxii, 249 p. Includes bibliographical references and index. ISBN 0-914584-23-5. $40. Volume 24.

This long-needed work updates as well as translates the generation-old original Russian book, including its substantial bibliography, and a new English index. "This book is extremely useful for students of Mongolian history and literature because it brings together the entire historiographic tradition of the period." Mongolian Studies

The Last Mongol Prince: The Life and Times of Demchugdongrob, 1902-1966, by Sechin Jagchid. 1999. 504 p., ill., maps, bibliography, index. Original paperback edition. ISBN 0-914584-21-9. $50. Volume 21.

A deeply admiring biography of the last descendant of Chinggis Khan to play an active role in twentieth century Mongolian politics and Sino-Japanese-Mongol relations by a participant in the events he recounts. "Highly recommended, being suitable for both academics and non-academics...also [an] important reference work for ...studying relations between the Chinese Nationalist government and the Mongols, as well as between the Japanese and the Mongols." Mongolian Studies

Through the Ocean Waves: The Autobiography of Bazarŷn Shirendev, translated by Temujin Onon. 1998. lx, 230 p., illustrations, bibliography, glossary, index. Original paperback edition. ISBN 0-914584-80-4. $40. Volume 6, East Asian Research Aids and Translations.

The memoirs of the Mongolian Republic's most distinguished scholar. A fascinating blend of historical, political and ethnographic information by a scholar who was "present at the creation" of much of twentieth-century Mongolia's history. "The first autobiography of a major player in Mongolia's Communist state to be available in English." The Journal of Asian Studies

Reminiscences, by Nicholas Poppe, edited by Henry G. Schwarz. 1983. vii, 330 p., ill., notes, person index. Hardcover. ISBN 0-914584-16-2. $25.00. Volume 16.

"... definitely deserves purchase and reading by all parties who deal with Mongolia, and will have interest for students of Soviet life, and, indeed, the whole human condition." Mongolian Studies

All sales are final. Prices are subject to change without notice. For orders and more information, please write to Center for East Asian Studies, Western Washington University, Bellingham, WA 98225-9061 or email Jennie.Huber@wwu.edu.